MILLER AIRPORT FLIGHTS RESUMED

Flight instructor and passenger rides at the Miller airport at North Benton were resumed today after the field was declared a "designated airport" by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

According to CAA regulations, flight instruction and plane trips will begin at once, it was announced.

A number of local airmen who received their early flight training at Miller airport are now at advanced army and navy aviation centers. Among them are Leach, army cadet instructors, and C. C. Wilhelm and Robert Hendricks, who are in the ferry command.

Russell Miller of Portland, Me., owner of the field, now with the CAA, is expected at North Benton this weekend.

PERIODS FOR SUGAR STAMPS LISTED HERE

Stamp No. 1 Good For One Pound In Period From
May 5 to May 16

CONFUSION SEEN IN SOME PLACES

Four Periods Are Set Up;
Values After That Not Determined Yet

Stamp No. 1 in the ration book you received this week is good for one pound of sugar for the period from May 5 to May 16, local ration board officials explained today in listing the ration periods up to June 27.

Stamp No. 2 in the book is good for one pound of sugar for the period May 17 to May 30.

Stamp No. 3 is valid for one pound of sugar for the period May 31 to June 13.

Stamp No. 4 will be for one pound of sugar during the period June 14 to June 27.

Not Accumulative

Each stamp is good only for the time specified, John T. Burns, county rationing coordinator, pointed out today. Stamps cannot be saved and used later to get a larger quantity of sugar at one time, he explained.

The weight value of the stamps and the ration periods after June 27 are not known at the present time, but will be announced later by the Office of Price Administration.

Burns explained that the ration of sugar may be changed from time to time according to the total supply of sugar in the country. The regulation for each stamp will be published.

Some confusion was apparent in some stores earlier this week when about a half pound of sugar was issued to a customer presenting Ration Stamp No. 1, whereas it should have been a pound.

Burns today commanded the Salem public school teachers and other volunteers, as well as Supt. E. S. Kerr and Principal Beman Ludwig, for their work in the sugar registration, which was completed without a hitch. The registrars gave considerably of their time and effort, he pointed out.

Answers to typical questions which householders might ask concerning the rationing program were listed today by the county coordinator, as follows:

How much sugar can I get with stamp?

Answer—You may buy 1 pound of sugar with each of the first four stamps.

Can I get the same amount of sugar with each stamp?

Answer—Not necessarily. The ration of sugar may be changed from time to time according to the total supply of sugar in the country. The regulation for each stamp will be publicly announced by the government.

How long is each stamp good for?

Answer—Each stamp will be good for the period to be announced by the Office of Price Administration. The time each stamp is good for will be publicly announced.

Can I save the stamps and get all my sugar at one time?

Answer—No. Each stamp is good for only the announced period.

Do we each have to take our War Ration books in person to the store in order to buy sugar?

Answer—No. Anyone may take your War Ration book to buy sugar provided they are buying sugar for you. The mother or the father, or any one of the children, or anyone connected with a family may take some or all the War Ration books to the grocer to buy the entire household's supply of sugar.

Suppose I do not buy sugar at all?

Answer—There is no occasion for you to buy sugar except as you need it. But keep your War Ration book carefully. It may, at a later time, be necessary to use it.

It's advisable that everybody and everything steer clear of America's heavy, sixty-ton tanks—whether it be a Jap corps or a work truck as it is in the photo above—when these new steel behemoths go on the loose. This demonstration, in which the truck was smashed like paper mache, was held at the Baldwin works in Philadelphia where the giant land ships are being turned out.

SUBS HIT TWO SHIPS IN GULF

Fast U-Boats Make Appearance; U.S. Honduran Vessels Lost

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—First appearance in the Gulf of Mexico of very fast submarines commanded by officers apparently familiar with the shallow waters was announced today by the eighth naval district together with the loss of two merchant vessels.

They were the first reported lost in the gulf.

The ships, a medium size United States vessel and a small Honduran merchantman, both inbound, were attacked Wednesday afternoon and evening. One was sunk by a torpedo and the other set afire by shells and abandoned. There was no loss of life among the 87 crewmen aboard the two ships, or the six passengers aboard one.

AND ESPECIALLY NOW

What happens to mothers in wartime is something the statisticians haven't reduced to neat columns of figures—and of course they never will.

Their pride, their anxiety, their worry and their grief can't be described that way. It is in the expression of their eyes and the way they carry their heads that they tell their story.

The nation always is eager to find an excuse such as Mother's day to give them special attention—and especially now. The hope that lives beneath the war effort is a hope for all mothers, everywhere.

It is a hope that somehow men who believe it can be done will find a way to make a world in which mothers never again will know the agony of knowing that their sons and daughters must go forth into danger, instead of security.

OBJECT LESSON IN REALITY

The incident at Madagascar, besides calling attention to development of a technique of attack that turns against Britain's enemies what it has learned from Germany, is an object lesson in reality.

War is survival. The British have attacked a French possession in the course of trying to save themselves from ruin. They are not fighting France nor will Americans be fighting France when they finally move against French possessions that must be made secure against Germany and Japan. They will be fighting their enemies; France, at the mercy of nations locked in mortal combat, must suffer the consequences of defeat with as good grace when they involve its former friends as when they involve its traditional enemy, Germany.

Throughout history, switches of allies and enemies have occurred. Russia and Germany, as allies attacked Poland and now are enemies. Italy declared war on the United States after Pearl Harbor but only 25 years ago Italy was being helped by the United States to fight Germany. In the Napoleonic wars, nations often changed sides. The United States and England, enemies in 1812, were joining hands to put down revolt in South America a few years later—contrary to the aims of European countries that had been England's allies against Napoleon.

The main—the only—object in war is to survive with advantage if possible, but at least to survive. That is what all the combatants in this war are trying to do, misleading talk to the contrary notwithstanding. It is why shifts have occurred and more shifts may reasonably be expected.

NO SACRIFICE IS TOO GREAT

It's lucky the boys in the bombers, ships, sub-marines and hot spots didn't hear what was said at home by some of us parlor patriots when we heard that it might become necessary to put away our automobiles to help win the war.

The squawkings and lamentations were worse than anything heard at Valley Forge, Bull Run, Chateau Thierry—or Bataan peninsula and Corregidor. This it appeared, was worse than the supreme sacrifice. Take life, itself, if need be, but spare the family sedan.

The situation does not call for sarcasm, however. It calls for honest thinking, keeping in mind all those Americans who are fighting, learning how to fight, rotting in Japanese prison camps and sleeping in warriors' graves. They gave up their cars and all the other comforts of civilian life because the government said it was necessary. The people who stayed at home said it was necessary, too.

At first, the fighting men doubted it. That was when all of us began to worry about their morale. Then war exploded, everybody was glad that America was at least partly ready to fight back. No sacrifice was too great, the parlor patriots said. The men who were going to do the sacrificing said the same thing. That was unity.

Unity was important because the Axis hadn't thought it was possible. Americans were supposed to be soft—close to rotten as far as being worth two whoops in a showdown was concerned. The Axis still thinks so. The Axis might be right. That's what the war's about.

The soldiers, sailors, aviators and marines have been holding up their end. They've been doing what the government said they should do—and doing it extremely well. They have gone to outposts and waited for the enemy to try to blast them out. They have hiked and drilled and slept on the ground. And thousands of them will never hike again. No sacrifice was too great, they believed—and they proved it.

The war now has come to a point where official within the government believe it will be necessary for civilians to do some sacrificing, too. Nothing, bloody, or even hazardous—just some inconvenient things like holding down on sugar, diverting money from gadgets into War Savings bonds, and perhaps giving up the use of automobiles until the United States has restored its supply of rubber.

If the boys doing the dirty work on the fighting fronts ever found out what some of us patriots have been saying, they'd lie awake nights worrying about our morale. Take automobiles, for instance. Where they are, there aren't any automobiles, except to fighting. So perhaps they're prejudiced. But by the same token, it would occur to them that civilians who think automobiles for gadding about are indispensable must be prejudiced, too.

Because they're doing what the government says must be done to win the war, they realize the government wouldn't be talking about laying up cars to save rubber unless it needed to be done. After all, the country wasn't prepared for the loss of its rubber supply last Dec. 7—and since then, the war production schedule has been doubled and redoubled.

The real danger isn't that the government may take drastic steps to conserve rubber and inconvenience some of us parlor patriots, but that the politicians may get cold feet and lose the war for all of us. The boys doing the fighting have put up with personal inconvenience for the national welfare. They've a right to expect that the people back home may be able to endure a little inconvenience, too, if it becomes necessary. And they will leave the decision about what is necessary to the people with the best means of finding out.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, May 10.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very intriguing one, despite many irregularities and conflicts. There is need of caution in dealings with professional people and with large corporations where there is danger of peculiar, confusing and subtle involvements of a sinister nature. A strong tendency to impetuosity, easy and excessive outlay of funds, in gambling or long chances, or in personal indulgence would be regrettable.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much intrigue, treachery, subtle, peculiar and sinister relations, probably owing to an easy tendency to gamble, spend or be victimized, by professional persons or those in power. Also the proclivity to excess, self-indulgence and general prodigality and over-lavishness may produce regrettable entanglements. With precaution and good sense there might be enduring benefits.

A child born on this day may have many conflicting traits of character, with lavish, prodigal and indulgent habits. Yet it has sound talents and originality.

For Monday, May 11.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a lively and progressive day, with much moving to major operations under high pressure. However, this tempo may prove menacing, since there may be danger of agitation, strife, and rash and impulsive action, with rancor and ill-feeling. Secret enmity and deceit also pervade the domestic, affectional or social relations, although public or community interests push on to gratifying culminations. It is wise to deal with groups and agencies rather than hazardous personal contact. Safeguard love affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year with much success and satisfaction if turbulent violent and impetuous conduct be avoided by dealing through public channels or agencies where there might be strife or contention in private contacts. Intimate affiliations are under baneful vibrations.

A child born this day should be clever and versatile but its nature may be impetuous, turbulent and difficult especially in its private relations.

Mother's Day

Mother's day is rapidly becoming a traditional Sunday in American religious life. Motherhood as a spiritual and moral agency is recognized Scripturally as well as personally the world over. The greatest of God in Bible times as well as in this modern day pay tribute to devout mothers. They have contributed so much what was in their hearts and minds to mold character and which count. From Jesus on down through the apostles, and in the Old Testament as well as in the New, the mother of faith and vocation is highly exalted. And so—for then motherhood is that motherhood has lasting meaning.

A mother without faith in God, about love, nor without any spirituality to infuse into her offspring just isn't a real mother. He whom the Holy Spirit has led by His power has power to influence other lives.

190 Attend Presbyterian Women's Fete

A program featuring a book review by Mrs. Guy Byers and music was enjoyed by 190 Presbyterian church women and guests at the annual Mother-Daughter banquet last night in the church.

Mrs. Frank Entriken and her committee were in charge of the dinner.

Mrs. E. S. Kerr acted as toastmistress and Mrs. Hannah Maule gave the invocation.

Greetings from the mothers were extended by Mrs. Floyd McKee and the response was mad for the daughters by Mary Beth King. Mrs. Frederick Kirkbride entertained with piano numbers and Miss Jean Harwood, with vocal selections.

"My Yankee Mother" by Herbert French was delightfully reviewed by Mrs. Byers.

Tables for the dinner were attractively arranged with centerpieces of spring flowers.

"Indian Lace" Day Is Planned

Plans to hold "Indian Lace" day at Trinity Lutheran church May 24 were discussed by members of the Alice Dennis Missionary society, meeting last night at the home of Mrs. S. F. Sonnedecker, E. Fifth st.

A special program is planned for that day, featuring an exhibit of lace articles made by women in Lutheran missions in India. The articles are later sold to provide funds for the maintenance of the work there. The Alice Dennis, Miriam Miller and Jessie Thomas Missionary groups of the church will sponsor the program.

Mrs. J. A. Fehr, president, appointed as a nominating committee Mrs. Donald Cobb and Mrs. James Hinkle.

The program on "World Christian Fellowship" was in charge of Mrs. Cobb. The thank offering service was held by M. S. Wilbur Beck.

The next meeting on June 12 will be held at the home of Mrs. Hinkle on E. Fifth st., with Mrs. J. A. Fehr as leader.

Christian Missionary Group Convenes

Mrs. L. B. Harris, vice president, was in charge of the meeting of the Women's Missionary society in the Christian church Friday afternoon.

Plans were made for the members to serve the guest day luncheon for the Salem Garden club May 25 at the Christian church. Mrs. Harris and Mrs. James Probert will have charge of the kitchen and Mrs. Wallace Stewart, the dining room.

Mrs. C. F. Evans and her committee were in charge of the program which opened with devotionals served by Mrs. S. R. Shive. Features were a talk, "Christ, the Ultimate Answer" by Rev. C. F. Evans, and vocal numbers, "Sylvia" and "Short'n'Bread". He was accompanied by Lou Jean McDevitt.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Minnie Baughman's division.

The next meeting will be held June 12.

Forum Class Supper at Lawrence Home

Forum class of the Presbyterian church will have a coverdinner at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lawrence, 741 Jennings ave. The affair has been changed from the D. C. Felsing home.

Unity Bible Class To Have Program

Unity Bible class members of the Methodist church will have a special program following the coverdinner and business meeting at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the church. All members are asked to attend.

Start Broadway Flag Campaign

BRIDAL ARRAY LOVELY FOR FURLOUGH WEDDINGS

Every week-end from now on will be weddings, as girls are planning furlough weddings the first time their service men bridegrooms can get time off from training. Some of these ceremonies are just as formal as pre-war nuptials; others are of the garden variety; and still others are informal. The type of wedding planned usually is decided by how much leave the groom is able to get. For the man lucky enough to get several weeks, there is time for the big wedding with reception. The formal wedding gown is shown right. The Pan-American influence is evident in this dramatic gown in three tiers of organza, with sweetheart neckline, long leg-o-mutton sleeves and three-yard train. The costume is literally crowned with a cup-cake coronet of tiny pearls and flowing illusion veil. The flower garden bride selects such an informal dress as the cotton Dalmatian sheer, left, with bell-shaped silhouette. The decolletage is low and square and the short sleeves are edged with Chantilly lace ruffles. There is a finger-tip yellow veil and a wreath of field daisies. The marry-in-haste bride may choose a two-piece ensemble such as the one shown center, in victory blue virgin wool crepe, with blue and white striped Duchesse silk lapels and cuffs. The Renoir hat of the same blue Milan repeats the striped motif in its trim.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

Her first rehearsal for the role of Queen of the Chessboard Ballet would have been more absorbing to Brinda if she had not been listening so intently for a repetition of the mysterious buzzing. But the wireless signal—if it was one—did not sound again.

By the end of the evening, she began to wonder if she had not made a mistake. Possibly the noise had come from some of the elaborate electrical apparatus that occupied so much of Prince Vaslav's attention. But she didn't want to break our engagement publicly. Not just now anyway. Can you make anything of it?

Brinda couldn't. But she didn't regard it as especially important. Certainly, it was something that could wait until Dick was well again.

Then Gladys made a second visit and, when Brinda arrived later, Dick looked at her darkly and said, "Gladys says you're still going to Vaslav's. It that right?"

"Why, yes," said Brinda. "I'm rehearsing for the ballet—the one for the benefit of the evacuees."

Dick frowned.

"I'd rather you didn't, Brinda. Of course, I've no right to tell you what to do. But—Well, I suppose I'm jealous."

Brinda couldn't help saying: "On my account or Glad's, Dick?"

"What? Why, Glad doesn't care anything about Vaslav. He's a sort of high-class flunkey for her; she treats him like dirt. But you—well, I rather got the idea you and the Prince hit it off from the start. When you were dancing with him, I mean, at that restaurant?"

"Thanks," said Brinda, in a thin voice. "In other words, you think I'm more susceptible than Gladys—easier to get, to put it rudely?"

"Oh, come now!" Dick exclaimed. "I didn't mean that. Honestly, darling, you don't believe...?"

As Queen, her own moves were the least restricted of all and she found herself falling more and more under the thrall of the role as the rehearsal progressed.

"Vaslav is right as usual," Mrs. Badarouf told her during a respite. "You are wonderful — a born danseuse! But you will forgive me — there are some things you will do well to learn—some tricks of the trade. You will not mind coming to me during the day—for a few private rehearsals?"

Brinda agreed enthusiastically.

Private rehearsals would give her that much more opportunity to learn the things she wished to know about Vaslav and this strange man of his in the heart of London.

Yet, after two weeks had passed, and she had taken part in more than a dozen rehearsals, public and private, she was forced to confess that she knew as little as at the beginning.

The only thing of which she was sure was that Vaslav was in love with her. She could not have told how she knew. He hadn't gone beyond his first post of half-mocking adoration. Yet she could see it growing from day to day. She could feel it whenever she was near him — a tremendous power of longing and desire, held firmly in control.

She guessed for what he was waiting—some response on her part. She guessed, too, that he was accustomed to evoking such responses. And, once upon a time, she might have fallen in love with him. But now there was Dick... his happiness when she saw him almost daily at the theater... his kisses on her lips... his awkwardness, held firmly in control.

But now there was Dick... his happiness when she saw him almost daily at the theater... his kisses on her lips... his awkwardness, held firmly in control.

"I wish you were going anywhere else, Dick," she said. "Not because of Gladys, but... well, I sometimes wonder about Lord Mountwyn."

"Oh, he's sound enough," answered Dick, with no conviction in his voice. His jaw set in a stubborn line. "Anyway, you do, as you please, Gladys, for instance."

Brinda left it rest there. But, it only once. On that occasion, Dick had told her about Brinda.

"I can't figure Gladys," he said. Instead, he chose the occasion to make some radical changes in the steps Brinda had already learned.

She was so furious, she almost walked out on the entire ballet. But she doesn't want to break our engagement publicly. Not just now anyway. Can you make anything of it?"

Wasatch Range—Graveyard of Airliners

U. S. Civil Aeronautics Authority officials are considering the placing of restrictions on operations of airliners in the Wasatch mountain area in Utah, sometimes called "the graveyard of airliners." Five airline disasters in eight years in this area have taken a toll of 61 lives. The latest, several days ago, took 17 lives. The Wasatch range rises 10,000 feet out of desert and has been called a trap for planes.

Kearny Returns to Duty After Torpedoing

The destroyer Kearny sails down an East coast harbor well camouflaged and ready for combat service after repairs that followed her torpedoing in the North Atlantic October 16, 1941. In spite of the damage done by a direct torpedo hit on the Kearny, the crew brought her to port under her own power.

Her Husband Is Air Hero

Mrs. Richard Beck

Typical College Girl

Dorothy Roberts of New Rochelle, New York, a Jackson College senior, is a typical college graduate. While Dorothy plans to get married after graduation, she also intends to carve out a career for herself. She is engaged to Albert Shaw, Tufts College senior, who is due for a commission in naval aviation. After their marriage Dorothy expects to go to work while Albert will be in the Navy.

Miss Foreign Trade

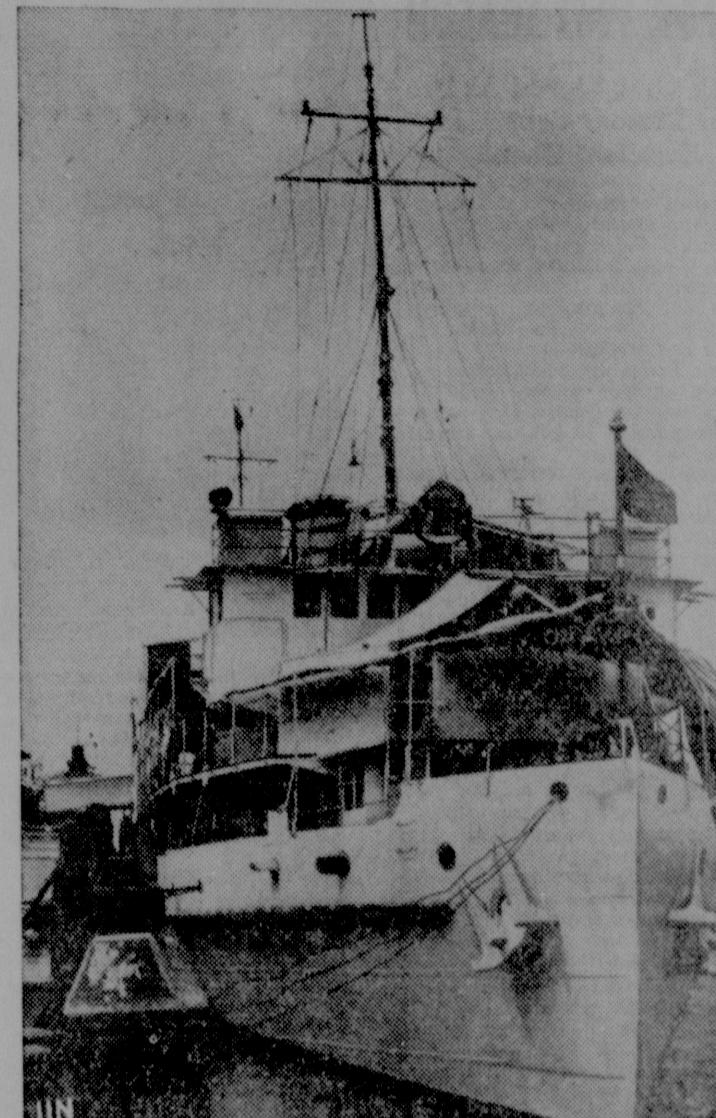

Pretty Lois James, chosen "Miss Foreign Trade," will represent America's sea-borne commerce in the coming celebration of Foreign Trade week. With wartime conditions stressing the need of products brought from abroad, the importance of foreign trade is being emphasized especially this year.

They Fly Through the Air—

These boys from the 107th Cavalry, now a mechanized unit, are having lots of fun putting a jeep through its paces at Fort Ord, Cal. Used to bucking horses, they don't mind a bit having four tires off the ground at one time.

Gunboat Lost With Corregidor

According to a Navy announcement, the U. S. gunboat Luzon, shown above, another gunboat and three mine sweepers were lost, apparently without casualties, in the final fighting preceding the fall of the island fortress of Corregidor in Manila bay. The Luzon and the mine sweeper Quail, severely damaged by Jap gunfire, were sunk by U. S. forces "when capture appeared imminent."

Fate on Corregidor Unknown

Fate of Col. Samuel L. Howard, in charge of the Marine personnel on Corregidor island, is unknown as is the fate of 3,844 other officers and men of the Navy and Marine Corps following the surrender of the fortress and other forts in Manila bay, the Philippines. The picture above of Colonel Howard was taken in June, 1941, in Shanghai, China, when he was given the "honor" of reviewing Japanese marines. He is walking with Rear Admiral Taketa of Japan.

Plane Crash Pilot

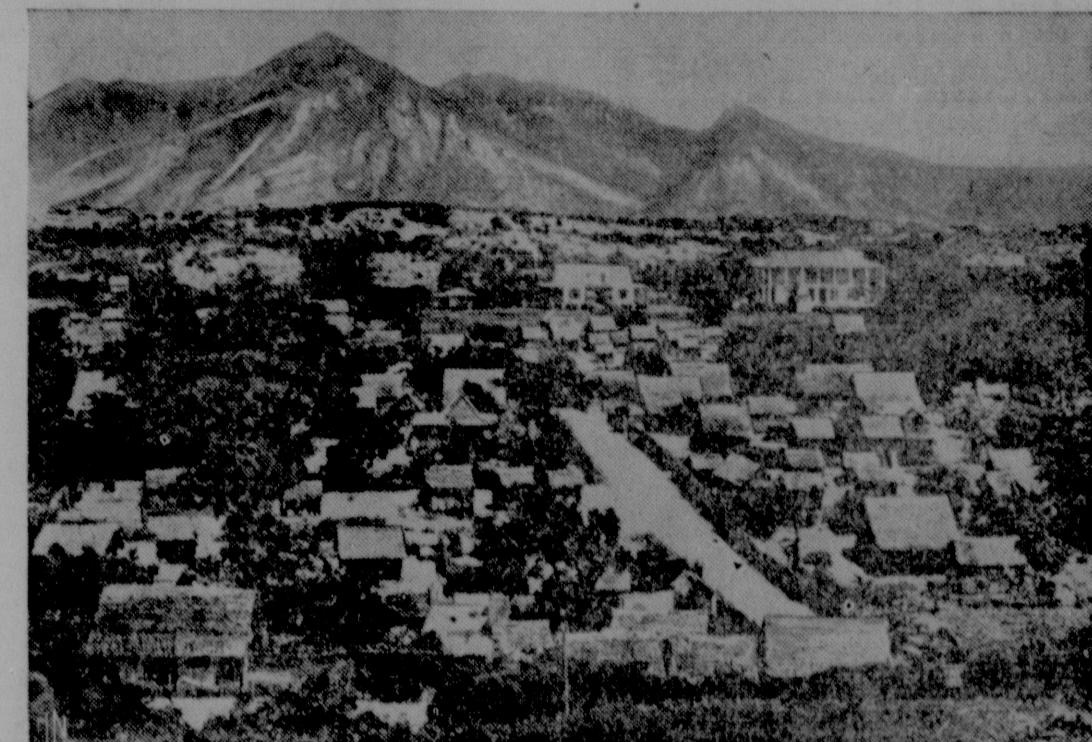

Pilot Donald W. Brown was killed when a United Airlines mainliner he was flying crashed into a peak on the jagged Wasatch Mountains in sight of the Salt Lake City airport. Sixteen other persons died in the flaming wreckage. The plane was eastbound from San Francisco to New York when it cracked up.

Commands Bombers

Here is a close-up of Air Marshal Arthur Travers Harris of the Royal Air Force who is behind the relentless bombing of Germany's industrial-military machine. He is chief of the Bombing Command and headed the recent British Air Mission to the United States. He has been in the RAF since 1915 and is generally at the controls of every plane in which he travels.

In the Path of the Hard-Hitting Commandos

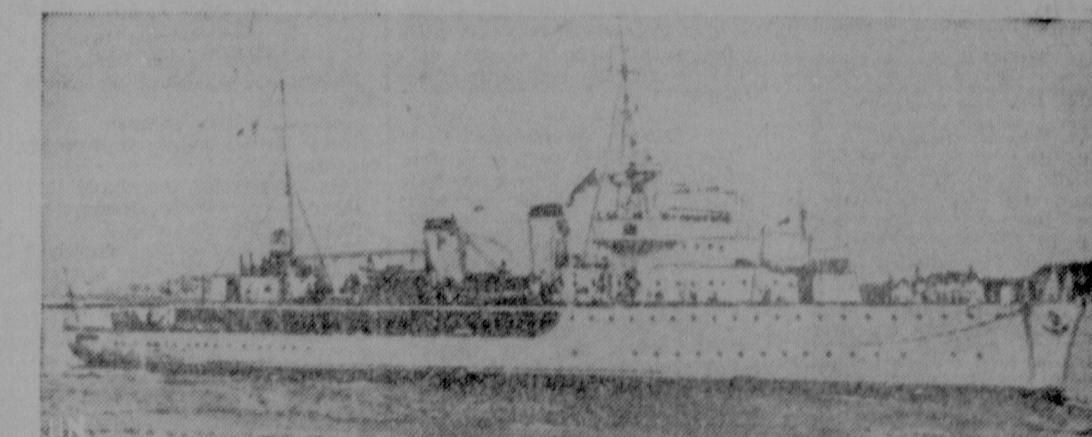

British commandos, supported by naval and air forces, are smashing through Vichy French resistance on Madagascar and battling for strategic points like Fort Dauphin (above), which is located at the southern tip of the island. The invasion is being carried out with the approval of the U. S. government.

They Have Great Deal to Say About India's War Effort

French Cruiser Sunk by British Off Madagascar

Here is the French auxiliary cruiser Bougainville, a 5,000-ton vessel, which went down under British naval gunfire in the offensive against Madagascar, strategic French island in the Indian ocean off the African coast. Key points surrendered after three days of resistance. Another French ship, the submarine Beveziers, was also sunk by the British.

Drifted 8 Days in Lifeboat

John Brown, a member of a tanker crew of twenty-six men, was rescued after drifting eight days in a lifeboat when his ship was torpedoed and sunk in the North Atlantic. He is shown with his children Joan and Billy after his arrival at his Roxbury, Mass., home.

Heads AEF in Africa

Maj. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, chief of the American mission in North Africa, disclosed that American service troops in increasing numbers are supporting the main British army and air forces against units of German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel. One officer of the American mission is Major Elliot Roosevelt, second son of President Roosevelt.

PERIODS LISTED FOR SUGAR STAMPS

Stamp No. 1 Good For One Pound In Period From May 5 to May 16

for other commodities if they are rationed.

May I tear out a stamp and take it to the store to buy sugar?

Answer—No. You must take the War Ration book with you and tear out the stamp in the presence of the storekeeper or his employees.

Suppose I order sugar by telephone?

Answer—Before the person making the delivery can give you the sugar you must show him the War Ration book, or the family's Ration books, and in his presence tear out enough stamps—not more than one from each book—to cover the amount of sugar you have ordered.

He cannot give you more than your stamps allow even if it has been sent. He would have to take the balance back to the store. Give the person delivering the sugar the stamps you tear out of the War Rationing books.

What if I need more sugar than I get with my War Ration book?

Answer—If it is absolutely necessary for you or your family to have more sugar for home canning, illness or some other special reason, you may go to your local rationing board. They will decide whether you can have this sugar, and how much you can have. They may then issue to you a special certificate permitting you to buy a specified amount of sugar for a specified purpose. You will not need to use the War Ration book or books in buying sugar with this certificate.

What do I do if my War Ration book is lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated?

Answer—Report the facts to the local rationing board at once.

Can I send my War Ration book home to my family to use?

Answer—No. Your War Ration book is issued to be used by or for you. The sugar it permits you to buy is intended to be used by you or by the family of which you are a member and with whom you live.

Do these War Ration stamps entitle me to get sugar for nothing?

Answer—No. They only entitle you to buy sugar. They determine the amount of sugar you or anyone else may buy.

Do I have to buy sugar because I have a War Ration book?

Answer—No. The War Ration book gives you the right to buy certain amounts of sugar. If you do not need sugar do not buy it.

If my family has enough stamps can we buy more than two pounds of sugar at a time?

Yes. You can buy as much sugar as your family's stamps entitle them to in the period during which these stamps are valid.

I make candy and cakes and sell them to make money. Can I get sugar I need for these?

Answer—Apply and register at the Local Rationing board. They may give you a special certificate to use to get the sugar you are allowed for your business.

I live in a boarding house. May I have a book just the same?

Answer—Yes. You may.

Hits Wrong Car

Raymond Miller, 40, of Canton, was cited for reckless driving last night after his automobile side-swiped a state highway patrol car on Route 62, a mile south of Canfield.

Corp. James A. Bower and Patrolman Herb Krogh overtook Miller, who failed to stop, and handed him a court summons. No one was injured.

Ivan Motich, 21, of Barbinton, escaped injury when his automobile went into a ditch at the junction of Routes 46 and 165 at 6 a. m. today.

PRYOR, Okla.—The Pryor city fire truck has been in service five years. During that time it has traveled slightly more than 200 miles. Mayor Frank J. Lauchs of Cleveland failed to reply to several inquiries.
